enemy in the fall of 1780—served in this tour one week – also marched to the Schoharie forts & remained there on duty for the term of one month.

He has also been out in several scouting parties round Saratoga Lake & places beyond fort Edward in search of Tories who carried intelligence to the enemy. In the month of July 1780, he enlisted for the term of four months in captain Lansing's Company of state Troops in Colonel Morris Graham's Regiment. Jellis A. He belonged to the division that was ordered to the west. He marched to Schoharie, saw it destroyed by Sir John Johnson & his army; pursued him & marched to Fort Hunter.

In the spring of the year 1781, he enlisted & served for the term of nine months in Captain Abraham Livingston's Company in the last named Regiment—and served during said nine months at Ballston & Saratoga.

He was discharged from this last service on the 20th December 1781 & this discharge was signed by Major Fink, which is now lost.
