That he was born in the town of East Hampton in the County of Suffolk State of New York in August 1757 & resided in that town until the first week in June 1776 when he inlisted into a company of a crops called the Flying clamp, raised for the defences of Long Island. He enlisted as a private for five months. The company into which he enlisted was commanded by Capt. Ezekiel Mumford, Lieutenant David Sayres & Nathaniel Hand.

The regiment to which said company was attached was commanded by Col. Josiah Smith. The majors name was Epinctus Smith. He continued in service in said company on Long Island till the September following when the American army retreated therefrom & repaired to New York.

He marched with his company on the evacuation of New York, by Kingsbridge to New Rochelle where he took shipping with said company & was landed at Sag Harbor.

After his arrival at Sag Harbor in the month of September he was engaged with others of his crops with a Captain Byington in transporting people & effects from Long Island to Connecticut for about three weeks, when he with a sufficient number of his work to form a company were collected at New Haven under the command of Lieut Sayre aforesaid & kept garrison there for about two months under the command of Col. He continued in this service till sometime in December when he was dismissed. He returned home by the way of Stonington & arrived at East Hampton a few days before Christmas. He cannot exactly determine the time he served but this he distinctly recollects that he received for his pay, fifty one dollars & a part of a dollar in Continental money, which he kept till it was depreciated to almost nothing.

He was engaged during this service in one ground battle. That was the battle of Brooklyn Heights where Gen. Washington commanded, a few days before the retreat from Long Island to New York.
